Sylvia Sydney Would Rather Tell Her Height Than Age

By United Press
Most movie queens change the subject when you ask them how old they are. But Sylvia Sydney is one actress who'd rather tell her age than her height.

Stunt Pilot Held

HEARING IS SET for Feb. 29 for Bruce Overmyer, 37 (above), of Lima, O., on charge of first degree manslaughter in death of George Gary, 52, who plummeted to his death from the plane in which he was a passenger while Overmyer was stunt pilot. Archaeologist Makes Plea

By United Press
Archaeologist Wendell Phillips has made a new plea to the king of Yemen—and to world opinion—to save the artifacts he discovered at Marib, the capital of the ancient Queen of Sheba.

For the first time, Phillips reveals that his party of Americans, Egyptians and Comals succeeded in partly excavating the circular palace of Bilquis of Balkis, two variants of the ancient queen's name. He said priceless statues of bronze and alabaster were found along with many inscriptions and friezes, of which he took impressions in latex.

The archaeologist warned the king that wild tribesmen and ignorant Yemenite soldiers, who forced his expedition to flee the country and abandon its equipment, may destroy all the artifacts or loot them unless the king intervenes.

Meanwhile, there is a romantic sidelight on the Phillips expedition. Eileen Salama, the beautiful Arab girl from New York who is Phillips' secretary, was married at Aden yesterday to Charles McCallum, the expedition's road engineer.

back in the movies—especially when the wardrobe girls look her over to see, as she puts it, "if I've had my face lifted." The studio workers are amazed that, at 41, Miss Sydney still has her 34-24-34 curves and youthful beauty.

She confesses she refused to hide the fact that she's 41 because she likes that age better than 20, anyway.

Many a middle-aged movie queen occasionally shifts her birth year up a notch. But this tiny star insists she'll always tell the truth about the number of candles on her birthday cake.

"Women who try to hide their age just call attention to it," she says. "Why lie about it? I don't feel any younger, nor look any younger. Somebody finds out about your real age eventually. It's easier to be frank about it."

11 Year Old Actor Has A Standin

By United Press
Sammy Ogg, a child actor, is 11 years old, and like any other movie player he has a stand-in. This pinch-hitter who stands on the set while the electricians adjust the lights looks like Sammy. He's 47 inches tall and weighs 33 pounds.

But there's one difference. After his job is done, the stand-in walks off the set, puts a long cigar, and goes home to his wife and two children.

The stand-in is, of course, a 43-year old midget named Billy Curtis. Billy specializes in standing in for children. It's a convenience for the movie-maker, for a child stand-in would have to observe special hours and go to school just like child actors do.

But Billy can work all day, as he is now for Sammy in a Warner movie, "The Miracle Of Our Lady Of Fatima." Before that he stood in for five-year old Georgia Winshaw, the five-year old with the forlorn voice who made such a hit in the Cary Grant movie, "Room For One More."

Billy also has stood in for such child actors as Freddie Bartholomew, Mickey Rooney, Bobby Breen, Donald O'Connor, Dickie Lee and Alfalfa of the "Our Gang" comedies. "I like standing in for kids," Angel.

Eastern Star Holds Regular Meeting At The Masonic Hall

Murray Star Chapter No. 433 Order of the Eastern Star was held Tuesday evening at seven o'clock at the Masonic Hall with Mrs. Bave Neil Mitchell, worthy matron, and Paul Dill, worthy patron, presiding.

The regular routine of business was conducted. An invitation was read from the Mayfield chapter to attend Friendship Night in Mayfield on March 14.

Mrs. Mitchell announced a practice meeting of the officers on Friday, March 7. There will be an initiation of the regular meeting on March 11.

The chapter was closed in the usual form.

Thirty members were present.

Odorless Varnish Been Produced

The makers of an odorless flat paint now have turned their attention to varnish.

The manufacturers have produced a varnish they claim is odorless, and they recommend it for all varnishing uses.

They say it will give a transparent high gloss finish, and they suggest it for wooden railings as a protector for paneled walls and, of course, for furniture and floors.

In preparing rare wood for a varnish they recommend—if the wood is open-grained such as oak, ash, and chestnut—use a paste wood filler.

Burt Lancaster Has Given Up Trying To Please Hollywood

Hollywood Actor Burt Lancaster says he finally has given up trying to please the gossip of Hollywood.

"Here is a town," says Lancaster, "where it pays a man or girl to walk the straight and narrow if he or she doesn't want to be talked about, but a town, also, where they'll all be talked about no matter what they do."

He says—"If a star takes out more than one girl the columnists buzz that he's playing the field and gossip label him a wolf and a 'Lethario'."

"But if he takes the same girl out twice they say he's engaged to her. Then when they're listed a girl as a 'big moment' and he tries to get 'em on a slow track by changing to another, he's called a heart breaker."

Burt Lancaster says the worst thing a star can do is stay at home nights. Then the talk is that he must either be "carrying the torch" or is a hermit.

So, the actor says with a sigh—"I've bowed to the inevitable. I've given up and joined the talkers."

"Fibber McGee" Type Of Closet Can Be Eliminated

A discussion by a small homes council dealt with closets—the consensus was that the "Fibber McGee" type of storage can be eliminated altogether.

Professor William Kappeler thinks most closets now are "over-engineered and expensive."

He says they occupy more floor area than necessary, while offering inefficient storage space—most of which, likely as not, is inaccessible.

The council considers the most efficient single closet to be four feet wide, two feet deep and eight feet high. There should be a couple of shelves—the lower one six feet high and the upper one two feet higher. And the door should be the sliding type, accordion-type or the hinged variety to provide full-front access.

Mrs. Lassiter Is Hostess At Meeting Of Proteum Club

The Proteum Homemaker's club met in the home of Mrs. Virgil Lassiter on Monday at ten o'clock.

The morning session was spent in listening to a very interesting and detailed account of Farin and Home week, by Mrs. James Harris, who represented the club.

Luncheon was prepared and served by the food leaders, Mrs. J. D. Rogers and Mrs. Baux Cochrum, who demonstrated colorful and delicious refreshments for the social hour.

Afternoon consisted of routine business, a discussion of things the club would like to study next year, and the completion of magazine baskets, which were started last month.

Nine members and Miss Rachel Rowland were present. Next month's meeting will be held on Monday, March 24, in the home of Mrs. J. D. Rogers.

Finer Quality Of Cotton Bags For Dresses Being Made

Rural housewives across the land soon will be delighted to be told that their dresses look like old flour sacks.

At least that's the hope of the national cotton council, which has launched a line of finery made from bags that once contained fertilizer, flour or farm feed.

The innovation arises from the complaint of frugal farm wives that old feed bags and such were a waste. Being made of heavy unusable fabric they were good for nothing once empty.

The cotton council's experiment started experimenting with flannel quality cotton for the bags. The council designed 300 fabric prints to make them bright and attractive.

And now the rural wife need only rip out the seam of the bag, wash it and come up with about two yards of dress material. In addition to the prints, there'll be plain bags suitable for drying any color that strikes the fancy.

The council admits it's aiming the campaign at rural women. But it believes that budget-conscious housewives everywhere ultimately may find uses for the cloth bags.

The feed bag fashions were introduced to the public in conjunction with a meeting in Cleveland of the national association of soil conservation.

Mrs. A. G. Walton is quite ill at her home on Vine Street.

Fashion Is More A Matter Of Emotion Than Pure Reason

By United Press

A sociology professor at the University of Cincinnati says fashion is more a matter of emotion than of pure reason.

Dr. Ernest Talbert takes the witness stand against the type of clothing worn by men and women today. He says leading offenders against common sense are heavy wool sports coats worn by men in the summer; the frail shoes that women tramp about in during winter; and—that common male peeve—women's hats.

Then he points-out an inconsistency in the followers of fashion trends.

In a book he calls "In the Spirit of Jefferson," Professor Talbert says a fashion at the peak of acceptance is widely considered beautiful. But he says most people don't remember they thought the same fashion ugly when it first came out.

TRUMAN TO LEAVE FOR VACATION AT KEY WEST

By United Press

President Truman says he's taking off for a Florida vacation, and there will be time enough to announce his political plans when he returns.

At his regular weekly news conference this morning the President said he still is not ready to make the big announcement, and won't be during his vacation at Key West, Florida.

The President said he will take off on vacation at Key West, Fla. The President said he will take off on vacation on March 7, one week from tomorrow. He is expected back about March 28 in time for the annual Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner of the Democratic party on March 29.

A newsman asked the President whether he might make the announcement at the dinner. The President answered that by saying he'll reveal his political plans when he is ready, not before.

The President did announce two government nominations. He has selected vice chairman Paul Walker to become chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, succeeding Wayne Coy, who recently resigned.

To replace Walker as vice-chairman, Mr. Truman has nominated Robert Bartley, a nephew of House speaker Sam Rayburn.

Livingston county farmers reported that the University of Kentucky Farm Record Book helped in filling their tax return, and even saved them money.

Woman Narcotics Detective Uncovers Cache Of Heroin

By United Press

A veteran woman narcotics detective says the new stiffer drug laws are making her job tougher and more dangerous.

Detective Katharine Barry, five feet two, blue eyed and motherly, recently uncovered a half-million-dollar cache of heroin in a shabby Manhattan bedroom. She arrested one man, that night and two the next day.

Her colleagues on the narcotics squad say it was a job for any male cop to be proud of. But Kitty Barry has been making narcotics arrests for seven years and up to now has taken them in her stride.

Now however, the new laws providing stiffer penalties for selling drugs have created a new situation. "The work," she says, "is getting a little more dangerous. You can't expect them to come willingly when you make an arrest."

The State already has substantially increased its contribution in this field, by authorizing appropriations of $1,451,729 for the next two years, an increase of $438,700 over the present two years.

"The need for skilled and semi-skilled employees is becoming more critical as the defense production program increases," observed Wilson.

One Close Shave Begets Another

Pvt. Jeral Innes, Granite Falls, Minn., was lucky to escape with his life when a mortar shell exploded near him on the Korean front. He suffered a leg wound and had 18 blood transfusions. Here, in a hospital in Japan, he gets another close shave—this time from a Japanese barber. At the same time a Red Cross volunteer takes down a letter as Innes dictates.
